

Abstract of the Disclosure

This machine is a mutated creature of all or most technology to produce either a platform that can be bolted to an existing power supply; as well as could be a complete unit that produces the same result of the ability to fly, hover, &/or drive. This solves many problems by offering an alternative; many parking lots already have helicopter pad(s) so being able to fly in & then hover to a parking spot is an asset. Then if you only add the ability to drive on existing streets / highways; you get the most universal transportation available. Later calculating in the factor that you can convert your existing motorcycle or ATV that is in your garage, into this highly sophisticated futuristic flying machine keeps cost down for a smooth transition is the "Pas-Key" to the future. Imagine driving out bound on the freeway & at the fly zone limit, you flip a switch and fly right off the pavement.
